

School Reunion a great success

FIFTEEN years worth of gossip was exchanged at a students' reunion held at Teesside High School in Eaglescliffe when 30 former pupils including the former head teacher Joan Coales, now Mrs Joan Hennessy gathered to catch up with old friends and staff.

The 'old girls' – many of whom had brought their husbands and children – travelled from as far afield as London, Kent, Hertfordshire, Lincoln,

Norfolk, the West Midlands and Tyneside and were addressed by Mrs Hennessy in the school's dining room. After refreshments they toured the school to see all the new developments while reminiscing about their own school careers. Many also met up later for an evening meal in Yarm.

The organiser of the event, former pupil Kate Caroe, said "The reunion was great. Everyone said they'd had a fantastic day – I'm so glad we did it." ■
