

LONDON TOUR: the party from Teesside High School outside Hampton Court Palace

Students enjoy capital experience

DESPITE the recent icy weather, a party of 14 students and three staff from Teesside High School, in Eaglescliffe, enjoyed a whistle-stop tour of London.

The group split up on the first day of their visit, with history students enjoying a guided tour of the Globe Theatre, while the art students toured the New Art From The Middle East exhibition at the Saatchi Gallery, and the Art Now exhibition at Tate Britain.

Later, the whole party enjoyed an evening at a West End theatre.

The following day, the students and staff visited Hampton Court Palace before a brief visit to Covent Garden for shopping and a look at how preparations for the weekend's Bafta awards ceremony were progressing.

The party was led by history teacher Susan Casey, who said: "The students have enjoyed all aspects of their visit to the capital city – even the snow did not dampen their enthusiasm. The things they have seen will help put lessons into context and provide extra inspiration in their chosen subjects."
